

Travel with ease, Mind in peace

A quick guide to Travel Insurance

What is Travel Insurance?

A travel insurance policy can provide you with cover you may need for financial losses caused by a wide range of events that can affect your trip, whether they occur before, during or even after your trip.

Some of these risks could include the financial losses you experience due to travel changes, cancellation or interruption, medical expenses, baggage damage or theft, and more.

Your flight is likely to be delayed than you imagine

Using the data from 2009 to 2018, there is 20% chance that a flight will be delayed. That means 1 out of 5 flights is more likely to be delayed.

What if you get sick while in travel?

Hospital cost in other Asian countries

Primary-level Hospital

Most people are very familiar with primary care. This is your first and most generalized stop for symptoms and medical concerns. Primary care providers: Doctors, Nurse practitioners, or Physician Assistants

Secondary-level Hospital

When your primary care provider refers you to a specialist, you are then in secondary care. Secondary care simply means you will be taken care of by someone who has more specific expertise in what is ailing you.

Secondary care is where most people end up when they have a medical condition to deal with that can't be handled at the primary care level.

Types of Travel Insurance Benefits

Flight Delay Coverage

A flight delay insurance will provide you reimbursement for additional transportation costs or additional expenses incurred due to the following reasons: severe weather conditions, natural catastrophes, technical failure of aircraft.

Medical Treatment Coverage

Travel medical insurance also covers In-Patient and Out-Patient care, surgery, doctors' consultation, prescribed medicines and ambulance due to covered illness or injury.

Trip Cancellation Coverage

Trip cancellation benefit is designed to cover your prepaid non-refundable losses in case you have to cancel your trip.

Loss or Damaged Baggage Coverage

This travel insurance coverage reimburses you (up to the maximum in the policy) for the value of lost, stolen, or damaged baggage.

Loss of Travel Documents Coverage

Travel Insurance will also cover for the cost of replacement including unused visa and re-issuance of travel tickets or cost of the new return flight tickets of the same class.
